THE RESPONSE NETWORK AND THE IACP LAUNCH THEIR ONLINE IN-SERVICE TRAINING INITIATIVE IN COLLABORATION WITH APCO, IACLEA AND NORWICH UNIVERSITY

In response to a long-term search and results from multiple membership surveys, the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) has selected and partnered with The Response Network Inc. (TRN) to develop and provide in-service online training courses to its membership and the entire law enforcement community.

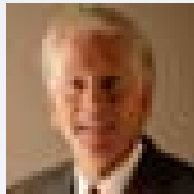

HIGH-QUALITY STATE-OF-THE-ART COURSEWARE AT A VERY AFFORDABLE PRICE FOR YOUR OFFICERS AND 9-1-1 PERSONNEL

For an annual subscription fee of only $74.95 per officer per year, your law enforcement and public-safety personnel can access superior, self-paced, online training courses developed by leading IACP and other nationally known subject matter experts. Your employees will improve their core skills and their professional awareness of evolving legal and tactical issues, and their core skills while your department tracks their training progress through record keeping, tests, and assessments operated by TRN's Learn-ing Management System.

Online training saves time and money while providing accuracy and convenience. By becoming a subscriber today, you can join with the IACP in making a significant impact on your department's future training needs. Online training should be part of an agency's total training solution, and PoliceCommunity.net provides the best in terms of quality, price, and endorsement from your professional colleagues.

WORLD-CLASS SUBJECT MATTER EXPERTS

The Response Network, working in close collaboration with the IACP and other public-safety associations, identifies and employs world class subject matter experts to insure state-of-the-art training that will help you standardize best law enforcement practices in your organization. To lead the company's curriculum development and quality assurance efforts, TRN has selected a highly recommended, 30-year veteran law enforcement training specialist who first began developing computer-based training for law enforcement personnel in 1990 and is richly experienced in instructional systems design. He and his expert staff will help you maximize organizational effectiveness – while minimizing exposure to liability and other risks and positively reducing your agency's training budget.

RANDY MEANS
Director of Curriculum Development and Quality Assurance

An attorney at law and former training officer for the United States Navy, a former department head at a state police academy, 30-year full-time advisor and consultant to U.S. law enforcement, and, nationally recognized expert in police training, Randy Means is uniquely qualified to head TRN's curriculum development and quality assurance functions. The primary legal and risk management trainer for the IACP, he has appeared on the FBI Training Network, spoken at national conferences of the FBINAA, and taught at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Centers, east and west. His work has been mentioned in the Wall Street Journal, discussed on 60 Minutes and featured on the Law Enforcement Training Network. Author of The Law of Policing, Means has taught more than a quarter-million law enforcement officials. No one better understands how to construct police training that is both highly effective and legally defensible. His national team of subject matter experts is similarly credentialed.
